Duke's Aggressive COVID Testing and Surveillance Minimized Infection

An aggressive COVID-19 surveillance and testing effort at Duke showed a high efficacy in reducing the spread of the disease among students on campus, according to a new study appearing this week in the CDC’s Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Read more

Duke Human Vaccine Institute Researchers Attack COVID-19

When the novel coronavirus began spreading across China, researchers at the Duke Human Vaccine Institute (DHVI) sprang into action and they haven’t slowed down since. They are collaborating with each other and with other institutions to unlock the secrets of the virus that causes COVID-19 and to develop tests, vaccines, and treatments.

Read more

Duke Program Helps Keep Businesses Running Safely Amid Pandemic

Duke University created the Greensboro Durham Program to help small businesses in Durham stay safe by using technology to monitor employees. For COVID-19 programs, connecting workers with testing, and providing access to community services.

Read more

Duke Expert Discusses How States Can Address COVID-19

Dr. Mark McClellan, a former commissioner of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration who currently heads the Duke-Margolis Center for Health Policy, spoke to media this week about how states can address COVID-19, the upcoming holidays, vaccine distribution, and when life may get back to some semblance of normalcy.

Read more

Duke University Hospital Completes 1,500th Heart Transplant

In the midst of the pandemic, Duke University Hospital completed its 1,500th heart transplant. This milestone achieved by only five other transplant centers nationwide.

Read more

Follow along with us on Twitter, Facebook, and LinkedIn. #DukeInNC

Duke State Relations
Doug Heron, Associate Vice President
doug.heron@duke.edu | 919-416-8923
Katie Stanley, Communications and Outreach Coordinator
katie.stanley@duke.edu | 919-668-1571
This email was sent to:  .
Manage Preferences or Unsubscribe
324 Blackwell Street Ste 920
Durham, NC 27701
Subscribe to our email list.